Editore Milwaukse Sentinel-GENTS: - Not having seen anything in your paper from this isolated region in regard to the political can vass now going on, I thought I would give you a few words about our progress-and prospects.

We have already formed a Lincoln and HAMLIN Club and have forty names, with a prospect of as many more before Election -Our hopes are that we may have a plurality in this county.

The Democracy here are much split up at present, and no hope of a Union. The most prominent and influential of the party are for BRECKIRBIDGE but they are in the minority yet.

The DougLas men are very clamorous, but their influence is only in numbers; if loud bragging will help them they are safe. There are a few here who claim to be BELL and Evenery men and will vote for them if there is an Electoral ticket. So you see that all parties are represented in Douglas county.

Humors of the Census.

Although the marshals engaged in taking the census sometimes experience annoyan-ces, yet they occasionally meet with persons who afford them no little amusement. Their task is often a hard one, and exposes them to charges of impertinences from those who do not really understand the importance of "numbering the people." One of the marshals of New Jersey, whose field of operations is in the interior, at a place somewhat remote from railroad depots, found considerable difficulty in getting information from an able difficulty in getting information from an "ancient maid; in lady" whom he had addressed on the subject.

Taking the senses, air you! Well, I reckon you can't take none here. She was indignant at his first remark. "Taint none indigipant at his first remark. "Taint none of your business who lives here, nor who owns this place. It's paid for, and every cent of tax on it tew. 'Taint best for you tew come snooping around to find out matters that don't consarn yon."

Her body, interposed at the doorway, although thin and wiry, prevented his passage into the house. The marshal would gladly have taken a seat, but she offered no such luxury to her inquisitor. "Hev I ever been marrit? Well! what next, I wonder. Perhans you'd like to have our nediorer right.

go back agin! Take our senses, indeed!"

The marshal tried to explain matters, to get her to understand the necessity and requirements of the law, and particularly to convince her that he was not a resident of Gotham. He utterly failed, however, for his next question only increased har anger.—
"Haw I got any children! Why you imperent puppy, how dare you asperse my character? Here hev I lived for forty-eight year, and haint never been ten mile from bome. Et you doubt my respectability you'd better go to our minister, he knows all about me; he lived here when I was born; he knows that all I possess in the world i he knows that all I possess in the world is in this farm, and the two houses down to the rillage, worth altogether, about fifteen thousand dollars. He can tell you that I lived with my father till he died, having no brothers and sisters, and that I never was marrit, and hant no children; he is well acquainted with the folks living with me, which is a little girt, a farm man and a big stout trish girl. But you can't git any in-formation out of me. I'm a woman of few words and don't allow meddlers.?

The good woman had now worked herself into a passion, and turning away slammed the door in his face. From her remarks, however, he gained the following facts:— "Miss Abigail —; aged forty-sight; never married; has no children; property worth $15,000; has no brothers or sisters; carries not exhibit a very charitable spirit towards on farming;" which after all was about all the information he cared to possess.

> WE COPY THE FOLLOWING from the No. tional, of Brussels, giving an account of the debut of Miss Isabella Hinckley, of Albany, at the Theatre du Cirque, of Brussels, in "Lucia di Lammermoor." Miss Hinckley made her first appearance in opera on Ciristmas Eve last, in Amsterdam. Her debut was a complete success, winning golden opinions in that old city, and receiving an engagement for one year to sing in nearly all the large cities of the continent. Originally engaged for second parts, she was at once promoted to the rank of prima donna. How she is received in Brussels, the article referred to above, of which we here give the translation, will tell:

"'Lucia di Lammermoor,' Donizetti's chef d'ouvre, is the most popular of all operas—its melodies are known to all; there is scarcely a note of it which may not be heard in the street; and yet, the aunouncement of the representation of Lucia by the Italian representation of 'Lucia' by the Italian troups, drew to the Theatre du Cirque an immense crowd. It was not the first time they had been attracted there—'Ernani,' 'La Barbier,' 'Don Pasquale,' 'Le Marriage Secret,' 'L'Italiene a Alger,' had siready drawn orowded houses—but this time the concourse of people went beyond all precedent of fall on Douglas office-holders in the Post Office. "I landed in Genoa, from Boston, somewhere in 1853, and wishing to see the south of Italy, traveled till I came near Viterbo, where I was cautioned not to go to Rome; but I still persisted in my intention of doing so, when I was arrested as not having a passport, and carried to the Eternal City, where I was placed in the Carcers Nuovo. Not satisfied eith the report which I care of my. issied with the report which I gave of my-self, I was tortured for three months as folself, I was tortured for three months as fol-lows: My hands and arms were bound to-gether, and then, by ropes tied around the upper part of the arms, they were drawn back till my breast protruded, and my bones sounded, 'crick! crick!' There was another species of torment practiced upon me, which was this: At night, while sleeping, the door was secretly opened, and backets of water were thrown over my body. How I survived it I cannot tell. The keepers were astonished, and said they had never seen such an instance; 'But you will never get out alive,' said the Caporale Rosaloi. I replied that I never expected so to do, and prayed for the Angel of Death to come The worst torture of all, however, was the The worst tortors of all, however, was the prison itself, a room into which a few rays of light struggled from above, and the stends of which, for it had been used by the jailers as a privy—was as bad as death. For three mouths I suffered thus, and then without any reason assigned, was taken from it and placed away alone in a room called the "Salone del Preti," a large airy room, and was well fed and well treated for twenty-one mouths page. I was the prisoner at the months more. I was the presoner of the Cardinal, Secretary Antonelli. About the middle of 1855, again without any reason

On another occasion I was called before Branchini, the Director of Police, who interrogated me. I appealed against my sufferings, and all the reply I got was, "Va bene, va bene?" from a Christian man to one suf bering as I was! I have been asked to send a supplica for my liberation, but my invaria-ble answer was, 'I will die first; never will I ble answer was, 'I will die first; aver will i ask anything of this government.'

When I first arrived here I had a little money, which for a short time procured me better food than the prison fare, and then by degrees I sold my clothes. At last I sold, at times, my black bread to have a little salt to salt to said the over my beans, and sometimes to large party of ladies and gentlemen from sprinkle over my beans, and sometimes to procure some insense to reneve the norma-stench of my prison. As for water, for pur-poses of cleanliness, it was never supplied me, and all that I could do was to dip one of my own rags in a jug of drinking water and wash some portions of my body. During the day I could repose, but at night I was covered with black beetles, ileas and lice, and every conceivable species of vermin. I expected death, and desired and prayed for it as a relief, but it never came. My clothes were at last so reduced that I was all but brown drawers, nothing more; on his feet were a pair of shoes with the soles and upper leathers all in holes. He had no shirt, but over the upper part of his body was thrown a rag, something like a coarse kitchen towel, one corner of which he had placed on his head, and as the long elfin locks that had not heen cut for many years hung down far be-low his shoulders, he appeared more like a brute beast than a Christian man. 'Sea this rug,' said he, 'how I have lotched it! This. was my dress, and so clad, I. paced up and down my solitary den.' 'When I heard of his stata,' said the henevolent Arenare whose name should be known and honored -'i sent him some clothes, otherwise hould not have left his prison; and when he entered my bouse I thought I had never wit nessed such a sight. He was supported by we persons, for he could scarcely walk, and two persons, for he could scarcely stared about, exclaining, Where am I? He was evidently lost. He has somewhat recovered in appearance, but his eyes are still; half closed, as though unaccustomed to the light, and the indications of suffering are unnistakeable. You were astonished by what you have seen,' said a friend who was with dreds of such sights."

We thought the lecture was brilliant; i ras, as we have said, replete with sparkling ideas, but the sparkle was not that of the real diamond, rather of an evanescent paste. What was brilliant during utterance, in most cases became common-place when thought over afterwards. Most of the truths enunciated in the elaboration of his subject, were couched in apothegms-pleasing, dazzling, odd, but not remarkably logical or convincing. The lecture throughout was a picture, with details here and there splendidly sketched; now a dash of the romantic, now approaching the grand; cloudy, but never spiritual; impressive, but not reverent; bold but incomplete, and unsatisfactory and vague as a whole. There is somewhat of the Divine oghatus in Mr. BARTLETT, as heret must necessarily be in every good painter, and if his love of eccentricity dues not lead the country and aid in the in-gathering of the him into vulgarity, he will be an ornament As a preacher of the gospel, his originality

Mr. BARTLETT is an attractive speaker; he

A meeting was held at the West Fourth place to the lazy christian who pinned his devotions to the bed post, and said to the August 4th. H. L. PAGE, Esq., was appointed Chairman, and CHARLES GIFFORD, Secretary,

It was arnounced that the object of the meeting was to take into consideration the resignation of the Teacher, Mr. James MUALLISTER, and to take such action as might be thought hest with reference to the conduct of the school for the ensuing year. These subjects were fully discussed, and Messrs, Page, Tesch and Tainton were appointed a committee to confer with the School Commissioners in regard to the appointment of a teacher, and other matters affecting the interests of the school and to secure, if possible, the services of Mr. Mc ALLISTER, as Principal of the same. The following preamble and resolution WHEREAR, We have learned, with great regret, tha Mr. McAllister has resigned his position as teacher of this school.

Resolved, That we, whose children have been under his care during the past year, and who are familiar with the circumstances in which the school was established, and with the means by which, in so brief a time, it has been elevated to its present rank, deem it but an act of simple justice to Mr. McALLISTER to say that, as a teacher, we know him to be zealous, prompt, skillful and to every respect efficient and capable; and that in his intercourse with ourselves and our children we have found him kind, affable and sourteous, and and honorable man.

Resolved, That we hereby tender him our grateful thanks for the hurry interest he has manifested in the intellectual and moral welface of our children, and for the unbagging energy he has displayed in promoting the same by all the means in his power.

Resolved, That he Secretary by requested to present a copy of these resolutions to Mr. McAllister, and to have them published in the city papers.

It yet remains to speak of the course of agricultural lectures at Yale College, in the month of February last. Its object was a novel one; its result a rare success. I need not detain you with the history of this. It is familiar to us all. But very few persons outside of the State attended, and yet it paid.

The effect was most happy upon that region of country. Bringing together so many men of high qualifications from different sec-tions of the Union, and hearing their ad-tions of the Union, and hearing their ad-dresses, the results of observation, experi-ence, and study, as well as the private con-ferences in a social way, were highly grati-fying to the projectors of the plan. Van Buren in his advocacy of the Sub-Treasury, opposition to the annexation of Texas, and who advocated the Constitu-tion of 1846, bore this epithet. It is said to have been adopted from the contest between Samuel Young and Daniel S. Diokinson in the Senate in 1843. The latter, referring to the determination of the former to procure the determination of the former to produce the removal of the Hunkers from office, compared them to the farmer who Jurned his barn to destroy the rats, not remembering till it was too late that a year's crop of wheat was also perishing ""We will burn the barn," cried Col. Young, whose frends were henceforth denominated Barnburners. A large proportion of them are now members of the Republican organization.

Silven Gravs.—This epithet was applied to those Whigs, who, in 1850, decided to support the Fugitive Slave Act. It had been borne by the Federalists. They styled themselves "National Whigs," and have generally amalgamated with the American and Democratic parties.

He then stated that an enterprise was about inaugurated in the city of Chicago, for which we find reported in the Chicago Tribune, as follows: an Agricultural College, in connection with the University of Chicago, which he wished to mention, that the Convention might know what had already been done; and to prevent

"I first visited Cincinnati with a view of visiting the Farmers' College in that vicinity, but on learning from several intelligent gen-tlemen of the city that it was strictly a litepary institution, and made but little pretensions even to teaching those branches which have a decided bearing on agriculture, i did not visit it, but proceeded to Washington

The State of Maryland has an Agriculturial of the The State of Maryland has an Agricultural college at Bladenaburgh, seven miles out of Washington. This institution went luto operation nine months ago, under the direction of a Board of Trusters. They have a Professor of Mathematics, of Chemistry, of the Ancient and Modern Languages, and an Entomologist who is pursuing his investigations there and preparing a text-book on the Entomologist who is pursuing his investiga tions there and preparing a text-book on the tions there and preparing a lext-took on the subject. This gentleman lectures before the school at stated hours each week. There are about sixty pupils in attendance, from twelve years of age upward. The College was satablished by act of the Maryland Legislature; March 5, 1856. $25,000 was raised by private subscription, and the State made a permanent appropriation of $6,000 annually for the endowment of the institution. A farm of 128 cores of land was numbered and a build. 428 acres of land was purchased, and a building erected of 120 by 54 feet, 6 stories high, at an expense of about $25,000. The accommodations are considered sufficient for about 120 boarders. There are a farm house and out-buildings on the place, occupied by the Register of the Board of Trusters, who is the business manager. An annual endowment of $3,500 per year, for three years, has also been made by a wealthy gentleman. The institution is laboring under some pecuniary embarrassment, and difficulties of a serious and unfortunate nature have arisen between the Trustees and the Faculty respecting the detail of its management, which have somewhat impaired its elliciency. The purils are all required to work several hours a day.— It was evident that the work they did was not generally agreeable to the pupils, and that it cost all it came to. The course of study is not yet well defined but it will be seen from the ages of some of the pupils admitted that it must necessarily be preparatetion of children whose exposure to vice or destitution have rendered them the especial subjects of public regard. The practical working of these schools is exceedingly in-teresting and their result beneficial, but they do not come within the range of our present investigations. Several benevolent justitutions endowed by private munificence are al-so in progress, but are as yet only in the formative state.

The Eastern colleges of the highest standing have, within a few years, established an elective or scientific course, in which Natural History is given prominence, and several otherwise. er branches related to Agricultural pursuits

Neither is it to be expected that time-honored literature will at once yield to youthful science her belt and prown without a struggle.

In view of this fact the friends of science have encouraged the establishment of scientific schools separate from colleges, on a basis posuliarly their own. The Lawrence Scientific School of Cambridge, and the Polytechnic College of Philadelphia are exam ples of the kind, and are institutions of high grant. The letter proposes soon to engraft

In the Constitution of the State of Michigan, adopted August 15, 1850, we find the following clause:

inead, and you have the belle, or bell of 1830."

"Sea. 11. The Legislature shall encourage the promotion of intellectual, scientific and agricultural improvement; and shall, as soon as practical, provide for the stablishment of an Agricultural School?"

Twenty-two sections of swamp lands were appropriated for the purpose. By an act of the Legislature, February, 1855, provision was made for the sale of the lands and the extendishment of an Agricultural College, the expense not to exceed $56,000. In 1835, $40,000 additional was appropriated for carrying on the College two years, and have year a further appropriation of about $40,000 more was given. The act of organization provided that the College should be located within ten miles of Lansing.

A farm of 676 1-2 acres of land was purchased about 3 1 2 miles from Lunsing. This tract was covered with a dense forest of heavy first-growth timber—a few mores being cleared. Lansing is situated 30 miles from the Michigan Central Raifroad.

Two buildings 100 by 50 feet, three stories high, were erveted, one for the college, and the other for a boarding house. The Program of the occumentation were smill perform during the same period of time, nearly as much agricultural tabor as the souther the college should be located at Glabor each day. They were allowed as dima an hour for their services. In his report, April, 1855, the President says: "We now have evidence to expect that the gentle of the college is an about four typical and the other for a boarding house. A four year's literary course of instruction was adopted. Among the higher studies pursued, some attention was devoted to surveying, leveling, &c., experimental, agaricultural, and analytical chemistry. Although the accommodations were sufficient for less than 60 pupils, 120 were received.

The Summer of 1858 was exceedingly unpropitious for this institution. The farm was new and stumpy. They had undertaken to raise a considerable amount of grain, but the weather was unpropitions early and late. During the summer 100 acres of heavy timber land were cleared and logged, stumps extracted, tile laid through quicksands, in all which labor the students participated.—They also had charge of the stock, the buildings, and waited on the tables. In addition to this, it was attempted to establish a grand university in which the entire general range of human knowledge was to be taught. A four year's literary course of instruction of human knowledge was to be taught.

It is scarcely necessary to remark that under all this, the Michigan Agricultural College was in deep water, and had touched bottom. A thorough organization has since taken place—only one of the original professors being retained, and strong hopes of uitimate success are now entertained.

A large number of the students and the President were compelled to leave the institution in consequence of sickness, and many who remained were invalids. At one time

The ROCHESTER UNION relates the case of a child, two years age, daughter of Mr. Davis, in that city, charmed by a snake.—
One day Mrs. Davis found the snake in the arms of the little girl, who was fondling it as she would a kitten. The mother was naturally much alarmed by the apparent peril in which she saw her child, and seized a stick to destroy the reptile. The snake slowly retreated, showed its tongue, and bissed at the mother. The child cried, and begged so hard of its parent to desist, that she allowed the snake to retreat to its hiding place. Ships and Pharmana Louring Ur.—Within 60 days the price of ships has advanced at least 10 Scent. We heard, yesterday, of a ship being sold for $67,000 — although her profession, of the same yard, of shindar size and cost, brought but little over $40,000 a few months ago, Orders for ships are now emanating from capitalists sonnected with the linearance offices—it being supposed that the same parties have been quietly sliding sat of their sound stocks at high prices. Ships are source, and we are informed that few are due immediately to our ports. Orain freights are already nearly as high as they were in the "famine" year, and this advance is telling upon everything else very rapidly. It is supposed that by October or Novacher, the cotton-ships will make more money than they bave done for years—at all events, ship-owners are firm in fitheir views, and are sanguine that their good time is coming. With grain at 206 250, and cotton at a penny, they will make money fast enough and fortunate will be be, who has ships at the right time and in the right place.—Boston Post.

MARINE ITEMS. Action of the Chamber of Commerce in reference to the Light House,—At a meeting of our Chember of Commerce on Saturday evening, the subjoined preamde and resolutions were manimously adopted ; imperatively demanded by the empiring and the business interests of this Port; and, Whenkas, The Light House Bill passed at the last session of Congress, contained an appropriation of fifty thousand dollars for the construction of a suitable pier and a new Light House thereon, at the "straight out" or north channel of the Harbor at Milwanker, and this Association are not informed that any measures have yet been taken to construct said pier and light house. Therefore, th thouse. Therefore, Resolved. That the Hon. Howell Cabb, Storetary of the Treasury, be respectfully requested to trans'er to the Light House Board (if not aircady dense) the sum appropris ted for the constitution of said plan and light.

Resolved, That the Light House Board be extractly requested to take immediate action on the subject, and to inform this Chamber of Commerce, if no impropriety for so doing exists, what steps have been taken towards the construction of this important work, Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury and Light House Board.

Francht Contract.—We learn from the Buffalo Re-press that Cont. Frank Perew has chartered his fine bark Inclacible for four trips from Chicago with whost, at 0, 8, 10 and 12c, being an average of 9c for the four trips. These figures are significant as show-ing confidence in an upward movement.
